County School Officials Concerned Over Return to Daylight Savings Time

Members of the School Board of Appomattox County and Lloyd Walton, Superintendent, meeting on Friday afternoon in the board room at the School Board Office in regular session expressed concern regarding the return to daylight savings time.

Some school students at the present time are boarding school buses quite early and with the return to daylight savings time on January 6, 1974 many students would be boarding buses in the dark. Another problem to arise would be the conflict with working mothers who would have to leave home before their children left for school.

The possibility of opening schools in the county an hour later (school hours would then be 9:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.) and the possibility of opening schools one-half hour later (school hours than would be 9:15 a.m. 3:45 p.m.) was discussed by the superintendent and members of the board. If schools are opened an hour later, the advantage of saving fuel was also considered.

No action was taken at the Friday meeting but board members authorized Superintendent Walton to make this decision as the board would not meet again, in regular session, until January 11th, 1974 and the time change will take place prior to that time.

Highlighting the Friday meeting was a tour of the new high school building which is slated for completion by the Fall of 1974. The tour, conducted by Lloyd Walton, Superintendent; Frank Chucheck, Administrative Assis...

Flood Insurance Program Adopted By County

Revised Building Code Ordiance Is Adopted

Louis F. Lombardi, State Coordinator, Flood Insurance & Flood Plain Studies, State Water Control Board, presented a proposed ordinance, which if approved would qualify Appomattox County for flood insurance, to the members of the Board of Supervisors for consideration when they met in regular session on Friday morning.

The National Flood Insurance Program, administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), allows citizens in eligible communities to purchase federally subsidized insurance, if they so desire, as protection against damages resulting from the general flooding of inland, tidal and coastal waters.

Under the initial, or emergency phase of the program up to $17,500 of insurance coverage may be purchased for single-family residential buildings, and $30,000 for all non-residential structures, including all agricultural, industrial, religious, non-profit and government owned buildings. The emergency contents coverage limit is $5,000 for all types of structures.

When a community enters the regular phase, new residences are required to be constructed so that their first-floor level is above the 100-year flood limits. Industries may still locate in the floodplain, as long as they are flood-proofed up to the 100-year limit. These land use requirements are already required under the Virginia Statewide Uniform Building Code. Thus, a community does not incur additional restrictions on construction in floodplains by entering the program.

To qualify for the emergency phase of the insurance program, each county and incorporated town or city must apply separately. Each community must adopt two resolutions which require manimal flood proofing and anchoring of new construction in flood hazard areas. Existing structures in these areas are not affected. Once a community's governing body has passed the resolutions and has provided the Federal Insurance Administrator with administrative data, the community becomes eligible for sale of flood insurance with two weeks, and its citizens may purchase the insurance from their local insurance agents. The premiums are minimal, due to 90 percent federal subsidization.

The Board of Supervisors voted to adopt the two resolutions as submitted, subject to approval of their attorney. Citizens who are interested in obtaining this insurance should express their interest to their local government officials.

Park Snead, associated with J. E. Jamerson & Sons, appeared before the board to review plans for the new Appomattox County Office Building.

Plans for this building have changed and the building size will be larger than originally planned. When a drawing of the building and complete details are available this newspaper will publish this information for the benefit of readers and or citizens of the county.

The Building Code Ordinance for Appomattox County was
